The awards:

Two awards for learners of $125 each, plus a framed certificate

- One in the community sector
- One in the school board sector

The purpose:

To recognize the courage of adults who know it's never too late to learn to read and write or to improve their reading and writing.

Criteria:

- All entrants must be residents of Quebec
- Learners must be engaged in English-language adult literacy training
- Canadian learners cannot have studied at the post-secondary level
- Learners from other countries cannot have read or written well in their mother tongue or have more than a Grade 8 level of schooling

What to submit:

Tell us: How has learning to read and write or improving your reading and writing changed your life? What can you do now that you could not do before?

The entry can be an essay/poem/comic strip/and form of communication that involves some writing. If you cannot yet write this alone, a teacher or tutor may write your words for you. Words and any drawings must be your own.

Length: maximum two (2) pages
